COUNTY HOMES RECOMMENDED

Report of Commission on Tuberculosis Presented to General Assembly To-day.

(Special to The Farmer.)
Hartford, Jan. 19.—The report of the special committee appointed by the General Assembly of 1907 to investigate tuberculosis to-day presented its report to the General Assembly. It is an exhaustive document of 86 pages, illustrated with a number of half tone engravings, and embodies a history of the disease in New England as well as the work performed by the commission in looking into the present situation in this state and the recommendations of the commission.

One of the most important of the recommendations of the commission is one which relates to County Homes for tuberculosis patients. The report says: "It is apparent that to meet the situation as it is presented to the State to-day, there must be some suitable place selected and suitable buildings constructed for the care of all cases of tuberculosis that are indigent and cannot with safety be cared for at home. For such a provision for the tuberculous, your Commission finds, after careful investigation, a demand upon the part of the public which must not be disregarded. It would appear that the most economical and at the same time efficient method to meet the demand will be in the construction of County Homes for consumptives."

It is proposed that such a measure, your Commission is not recommending the construction of expensive sanatoria, which it has already endeavored to make evident are uncalculated for. If this work is to be undertaken by the State, it should be done with a view to the possible cure, or material betterment of the inmates. It should be understood that the curability of tuberculosis in our own climate has been definitely established. Long years of training in a contrary opinion has so influenced the general public that they are still sceptical. Within the borders of every county in Connecticut there are many attractive locations, healthful, beautiful and well adapted to the modern fresh air treatment of consumptives. Some of these places should be secured in each county for the work proposed. In making such selections, due consideration should be paid to proximity to the larger centers of population, so near enough to interfere with the purpose of the institution, but as near as possible, in order to secure to friends inexpensive access to the inmates.

In selecting a farm for such an institution, it is desirable that one should be chosen that has upon it good farm buildings, in a proper stage of preservation. There is no difficulty whatever in securing such farms in any part of the State today and the present farm house and outbuildings will easily suffice for the offices of the proposed consumptive homes. As to the buildings for the accommodation of the patients, two frame buildings of simple design, one for male and the other for female patients, can be constructed so as to meet every requirement. The details of such buildings are not to be discussed in this report, as the designs will necessarily be varied to conform to the location and to the expected number of occupants. In a general way, it may be stated that these buildings should be two stories in height, the first floor containing a ward for such patients as may not require special care, the second floor divided into separate rooms, for the accommodation of those who are confined to their beds. A double piazza can be made, to supply out-of-door rest for the occupants of each ward. The most of the Massachusetts Commission for the Investigation of Tuberculosis in that state, it was estimated that such buildings might be constructed for $350,000 for the accommodation of one hundred patients. A county home for the largest counties in Connecticut would require this capacity at the outset, and as the number of inmates much less would be called for.

Your Commission, in making this suggestion as to the character of the homes recommended, is earnestly pleading for the avoidance of all extravagance. Built simply, as suggested, it will be a matter of slight expense to increase accommodation as the demand arises. The sanatoria in this country and in Europe are built upon a scale of magnificence, in many instances, that is wholly unjustified. The maintenance of such institutions is very expensive and for a disease of the character of tuberculosis such ornamental structures are most unsuitable. The very beautiful buildings and the expensive "shacks," now so much commended by workers in institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis, undoubtedly seem mean by the side of stone and marble, but they are more comfortable to the average occupant. If there is money to spend, let it be expended in the care of the patients and in proper remuneration of the attendants.

An argument against extravagance may seem unbecoming, but in all public work, unless checked by the danger of attempting too much, is well understood. A first expenditure in excess of what is desirable not infrequently brings a commendable public work into disrepute and seriously imperils its usefulness. The resident staff requisite for the proper conduct of the institutions proposed will vary in accordance with the service required. In the smaller counties, a matron, assisted by nurses when their services are necessary, will easily suffice. The occasional medical attendance that may be called for, can be secured and can be paid for at the rates prevailing in the neighborhood of the home. In the larger counties, a resident physician will be called for, to superintend the institution and to meet the emergencies that may arise and demand immediate professional attention.

A majority of the cases that will be cared for in these institutions will be found to require only such attention as may be necessary to comfort and the suitable direction of their daily life. For cases that show evident improvement, that give promise of ultimate cure, patients for whom sanatorium treatment is desirable, another provision will be made.

RAYNER'S RESOLUTION REFERRED.
(Special from United Press.)
Washington, Jan. 19.—By a strict party vote Senator Rayner's resolution of yesterday, calling upon the attorney general for information about the President's libel suit was referred by the Senate to-day to the committee on judiciary by a vote of 44 to 24. The only Republican Senators voting against the motion which was made by Senator Lodge were Senators Sutherland of Utah, and Knox of Pennsylvania.

PHILIP B. SEGEE DIES AGED 87

Was Large Holder of City Real Estate and Civil War Veteran.

Gave to Bridgeport First Opera House, Which Was Located in Franklin Block—Had Long Been Retired From Business.

Philip Brice Segree, one of the city's oldest and most esteemed citizens, passed away at 2 o'clock this afternoon at his late home, 467 State street, in the 87th year of his life. The deceased was born in Southport, May 20, 1822. Early in life he went to New York where he learned the trade of watchmaker, which he followed up to a few years ago, in connection with a jewelry business in this city. He was last established in Broad street, near John street, where he remained until advanced age compelled his retirement.

In his young manhood he became connected with the movement for the establishment of Christ Episcopal church, of which he was a senior warder, up to the time of his death. Possessed of a most amiable disposition, he made a host of friends and held the esteem of all who knew him.

At the outbreak of the civil war, he enlisted in the Second Connecticut Light Artillery. At the close of the war he retired as a first lieutenant, having served with distinction to himself and his country. He was an owner of considerable real estate in this city. The most prominent of his holdings is the Franklin building at Main and State streets, where he established the city's first theatre once known as Segree's opera house, or Franklin Hall. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and an Odd Fellow. He is survived by two daughters, Miss Annie F. Segree of this city, Miss Sarah F. Segree of New York and a son, Louis M. Segree of New York.

THAW ABANDONS FREEDOM ATTEMPT

Will Not Take a Chance in a Jury Trial in New York County.

(Special from United Press.)
White Plains, Jan. 19.—Rather than take a chance on having his sanity tried in New York County, Harry K. Thaw through his attorneys to-day secured an order from Justice Tompkins dissolving the writ of habeas corpus granted last week under which he was to have appeared before a judge in New York county, that his present mental condition may be investigated. The action of the attorneys came as a surprise. Securing a new trial as to his sanity had been regarded as the first step in gaining his freedom. Although it was conceded by those familiar with the case that District Attorney Jerome had gained a strong point in having the case transferred to New York county.

Haskell Causes McReynolds' Arrest

Charges Conspiracy in Connection With Suit Against Hearst.

(Special from United Press.)
Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 19.—The case of Scott McReynolds, New York attorney arrested last night on Governor Haskell's warrant, charging him with conspiracy, was continuing until Monday when he appeared before Circuit Court Judge Strang to-day. The legality of the seizure of papers which were in the possession of the Connecticut Electric and Medical Institute owed him. Instead of getting his money Gleason said he got a licking and was kicked down stairs. This morning he was discharged by Superintendent Birmingham. He refused to make a complaint against Dr. Allen and was given money to pay his fare home. This morning Dr. Krause discovered that Gleason's arm was broken and the fracture was reduced at the Emergency hospital. Gleason's tale brought him considerable sympathy. He was advised to get a home at the Sanitarium. He was given a home at the Sanitarium. He was to receive his board and clothes. Dr. Allen slipped him a little change occasionally. The doctors say that he was allowed to stay at his home and was again put out, this time by Dr. Allen, the manager. The steps were covered with ice and it is supposed that Gleason fell striking the hard ground and stones at the bottom. Dr. Allen denies that Gleason was kicked down stairs or roughly handled. He was simply put out and was in no condition to travel even on good going. No one at the institute thought he was hurt, for he walked away all right. His fall was cut when he first reached the institute. This morning Gleason said he had been paid $16 but there was still a balance due him. He acknowledged that he had taken a little too much the night before. Gleason is usually inoffensive but makes a nuisance of himself when intoxicated. His arm broke close to the wrist and he carried it home in splints. His face is covered with cuts and bruises.

Sierra Leone.
Sierra Leone—known to fame as "the white man's grave"—viewed from the deck of an incoming steamer presents an appearance distinctly attractive. As to climate, the sobriquet "white man's grave" is sufficiently instructive. Suffice it to say that the first of the daily regal orders ran thus: "Funeral parade at 6:30 a. m. tomorrow," and it was seldom indeed that the parade was dismissed for lack of a victim to the pestiferous climatic conditions. Indeed, so arduous became the duties of sepulcher that, whereas it was customary in the beginning for the entire regiment and band to attend, only the company of the deceased and the firing party did so later on. Sierra Leone is a land of snakes, large and small. The former are of the constrictor species; the latter are all extremely venomous. The most deadly of all perhaps is the yellow jack, a beautiful yellow and black reptile, whose bite is reputed to prove fatal within a space of twenty minutes.—Westchester County Magazine.

What Is It, a Lobster?
That the methods of public school instruction as applied in one city at least do not always meet the approbation of the parents of the pupils was evidenced when a German man whose bristly bald head was standing perfectly erect with anger strode into a Baltimore school one day and, approaching the principal, demanded: "Vot is it, a lobster?"

The principal explained in his suavest tone that a lobster was a species of shellfish.

"How many legs has it—der lobster?"

"The number of legs was promptly stated."

"Look here," exclaimed the irritated Teuton, "I work for me in a big hurry, and if your teacher he cannot find petter dings to ask my boy Herman how many legs has it, a lobster, and make him come home to bodder his fadder mit questions, 'Wpa' is it, a lobster?' it is pad business!"—Lippincott's.

Mill End merchandise is fresh and new and good.

Mill End price is not the only thing that makes the Mill End sale such a success. Mill End value and variety and quantity contribute much. And Mill End quality is a strong and ever-present factor. Every article that goes into the Mill End sale is attractive. Every single one is thoroughly good. You know, or you should know, the store stands back of everything sold in the Mill End sale just as it stands back of all its merchandise at other times. Anything that is not satisfactory is to be returned and the money you paid for it will be promptly refunded. If Mill End merchandise was undesirable, or old or poor-value, we could not do this: all that was sold would come back and we should simply make all our friends angry.

But newness and freshness and goodness mark Mill End merchandise. Cotton and woolen mills are glad to send us the pick of their Mill Ends. Shoe-men are glad to give us choice from theirs, potters and tailors and waist-makers and carpet-mills and curtain-factories—all these have their Mill End lots and the store gets what it picks as best from them. So the Mill End merchandise can not fail to be good and new and attractive in quality and pattern as well as in price.

The 22nd sale has already placed in the hands of new owners more merchandise than any of its predecessors. It has saved thousands of dollars for folks who have taken advantage of its opportunities. It will save thousands more, for it is still brimming with attraction and value—new lots are coming forward every day as room is made for them and there is everywhere present the Mill End magnet of low price and good merchandise. Come and profit by the opportunity.

GLEASON'S WIERD STORY OF ASSAULT
Came from Milford to Collect a Bill and Acquired a Jag, a Broken Arm and Other Injuries.

J. J. Gleason, of Milford, appeared at the Emergency hospital last night, badly cut about the face and complaining of injuries to his arm. His wounds were dressed by Dr. Ives and Gleason passed the night in a cell as he had been drink too much to be allowed to roam about the streets. Gleason told a pitiful tale of his experiences during the evening. He said that he came to Bridgeport to collect his bill from the Rivercliff Sanitarium which Dr. H. W. Allen of the Connecticut Electric and Medical Institute owed him. Instead of getting his money Gleason said he got a licking and was kicked down stairs. This morning he was discharged by Superintendent Birmingham. He refused to make a complaint against Dr. Allen and was given money to pay his fare home. This morning Dr. Krause discovered that Gleason's arm was broken and the fracture was reduced at the Emergency hospital. Gleason's tale brought him considerable sympathy. Deaths and Funerals.
William H. Sullivan, son of Patrick and Sarah Sullivan, died this morning at his late home, 99 Atlantic street, after a short illness. He was employed by the Eaton, Cole & Burnham company, and from St. Charles' church at 9 o'clock, where Rev. Father Callahan sang a high mass of requiem. Miss Jessie Murray sang feelingly "Beulah Land on High" and "Face to Face." The floral offerings were many and beautiful, signifying the high esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends. The pall bearers were Edward Dalley, James Bray, Peter Albricht, Clifford Seaman, Joseph Burnes and Robert Lynch. Interment was in St. Michael's cemetery.

Third Date is Fixed For Car-Barn Hearing
Mayor Lee received a letter from the Railroad Commission this morning notifying him of a third adjournment of the adjourned hearing upon the appeal of the Connecticut Car-Barn Association of the Common Council relative to the establishment of crossings at grade across the sidewalks in Stratford avenue and Congress street. The date set for the hearing this time is February 23, at 10:15 o'clock a. m., City Hall, this city.

Brandegge Elected United States Senator

Fourteen Members of House Bolt Caucus to Vote for Hill.

(Special from United Press.)
Hartford, Jan. 19.—The House and Senate, in separate sessions this afternoon, re-elected United States Senator Brandegge to the National Senate for the six year term. The Assembly will meet in joint session tomorrow and confirm the choice.

The vote in the House was Brandegge, 180; A. Heaton Robertson, 50; E. J. Hill, 14.

The vote in the Senate was Brandegge, 31; Robertson, 2. There were three absentees in the Senate and one in the House.

LIABILITY OF EMPLOYERS
Report Received Today By Legislature From Special Commission.

The session of the legislature to-day was extremely late in convening, owing to the fact that trains were many hours late. Speaker Banks did not arrive at all. Representative Parker of Hartford presided. The report of the tuberculosis commission was sent in with a special message from Governor Lilley asking that the House take action on the last message of ex-Governor Woodruff, suggesting a commission to investigate a higher tax on the beds.

In the Senate the most important business was the report of the employers' liability commission which was handed in to-day. It recommends that a law be passed allowing an employee to sue an employer just as if he were not an employee for the four following reasons:

1.—A defect in the machinery or equipment; 2.—unfitness or incompetence of a fellow employee; 3.—neglect of person acting in capacity as superintendent; 4.—neglect of person in charge of a signal, switch, engine, train, or telegraph office.

Hartford, Jan. 19.—At the annual meeting of the Connecticut Temperance Union held here beginning at 2 this afternoon, Secretary H. P. Spooner of Kensington delivered the 44th annual report on the work of the organization. Plans for work in the legislature this session were discussed. State Chairman Hohenthal of the Prohibition party was understood to have taken the place of Matthew E. O'Brien here as the latter is engaged in temperance work in Washington.

A RELIGIOUS AUTHOR'S STATEMENT.
For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy. F. B. Brill, local agent.

sleeping on the attic floor. From the position in which the bodies were found it looked as if Mr. Meade were trying to open the door so as to get out onto the back veranda when he was over come.

preventing the door from being opened. The girl was clasped tightly in Mr. Meade's arms.
The bodies of the victims were taken to Bourke & Fourke's undertaking parlors where they will remain until Thursday morning when they will be removed to the home of the son, Harold where the funeral will be held Thursday afternoon. Funeral Director Faby of Westport will take charge of the obsequies.
It does not appear that flames came in contact with the persons of the victims. This is shown by the condition of the clothing, none of which appears to have been burned. The skin has peeled off portions of the bodies of each however, which would indicate that the heat was intense.
Mrs. Meade is seriously ill, the shock of the tragedy having completely unnerved her. She is at the home of her son in the care of physician.
Suspects Incendary.
The owner of the property, Charles L. Gaylord, to-day told the police that he believed the building was on fire. This afternoon Fire Chief Mooney and Detective Arnold visited the scene of the fire and made a further investigation. The chief has not at any time believed that the fire was the work of an incendiary. He is firmly of the firm opinion that the hot air pipes in the house ignited the woodwork and that the fire ate its way to the upper floors slowly.

There is no case on record of a cough, cold or a gripe developing into pneumonia after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it cures the most obstinate deep seated coughs and colds. Why take anything else. F. B. Brill, local agent.
